

Royal Literary Fund

NEWNHAM & SELWYN COLLEGE

Take advantage of this FREE, friendly and confidential service that will help improve your writing skills

Students of any discipline, at any level of study – from 1st year to postgraduate – are welcome to book an online session with our Royal Literary Fund Writing Fellow, Dr Pragya Agarwal: a published writer whose role is to help you strengthen your writing.

Sign up for a 50-minute one-to-one tutorial to help you:

- Focus your reading for essay, dissertation or thesis writing.
- Express your ideas more clearly and confidently.
- Answer grammar and punctuation questions.
- Use a range of different sources and weave them together
- Increase your writing skills with the aim of improving your grades.
- Improve any academic writing: essays, reports, theses, dissertations, book chapters, creative writing. (RLF Fellows do not undertake proofreading.)

Meet your Fellow:

Professor Pragya Agarwal is a writer, and a behavioural and data scientist. She is the author of four widely acclaimed and award-winning non-fiction books including Sway: Unravelling Unconscious Bias (Bloomsbury 2020), (M)otherhood: On the choices of being a woman (Canongate, 2021) and Hysterical: Exploding the myth of gendered emotions (Canongate, 2022). Pragya is a visiting professor at Loughborough University, and a Fulbright scholar at City University of New York. She has also been awarded a Bodleian and British Library fellowship and membership of NYPL Humanities Centre. Her writing has been published in Wired, Scientific American, New Scientist, TLS, Guardian, Literary Hub and others, and she is the winner of a Nesta Crucible award for 'innovative inter-disciplinary thinking' and a Transmission award for 'making complex scientific ideas accessible'.

- WHEN? Appointments are available on Tuesdays and Wednesdays, 11am-5 pm (AND ONLINE)
- WHERE? Newnham College - Pfeiffer G07 OR By Zoom.
- HOW? Book your appointment by email: pa528@cam.ac.uk